Jump To: About Features Resources Product Comparison We (by which I mean our facilities team) just replaced our aging access control system (door locks w/ electric strikes, mag locks, motion sensors, burglar alarm, interior and exterior keypads, etc) with an S2 NetBox. Several observations: The web interface is HTTP-only, HTTPS is not an option (wtf?) - this kills the sysadminThe "remote logging to syslog" feature sounds great, until you realize it only sends OS-level system events (pretty sure it's a Linux box) to the remote logger. Access control events are not sent to syslog. Several features in the UI require FlashThe non-Flash portion of the UI was seemingly designed by a misanthrope, from the way the UI itself works to the way holidays work. (If you create a holiday schedule, it applies to any portal (door) EXCEPT the doors that you add the holiday schedule to....)UPDATE: The system does indeed support SSL (our Certified Integrator) didn't know how to enable the settings to be visible to customer admins) but requires that you upload the unencrypted RSA private key, instead of using a passphrase and uploading an encrypted key.
